Background information:
The NAATW is a gathering of AAs from varying backgrounds in service and varying geographic regions, all involved in direct management or support of AA websites and related technologies. They are from all levels of service from group to district to area to general service, where they are confronted with delivering the message in appropriate fashion in the face of rapidly developing technologies.

The workshop activities are aimed at sharing the attendees' experience to identify the electronic needs of the AA community and formulate methodologies to meet those needs. As AA members become more internet savvy and more smartphone phone and social media oriented, new pressures are put on those who deliver electronic content and functionality while maintaining anonymity. The workshop will be a forum for learning and a resource for tools to implement what is learned.
